[redacted]
Threats Against Admiral Stanfield Turner,
General Alexander Haig and National Security Advisor Zbigniew Brzezinski, Received Telephonically
at Pentagon
December 26, 1979

On February 7, 1980, [redacted] advised that he did not recall making any telephone calls on December 26, 1979, nor did he recall making any threats against anyone, and if he did, it was probably due to the quantity of alcohol he had consumed. However, he did advise that he apparently made a large number of telephone calls because his landlord had told him he had a large telephone bill for the month of December, which he would have to pay.

On February 13, 1980, Assistant United States Attorney (AUSA) [redacted], Eastern District of New York (EDNY), after reviewing the facts in this matter, advised that she would not recommend any prosecutive action because it appeared that this case unsuitable for prosecution.
